RENTERS' HEATING / UTILITY PROBLEMS WITH LANDLORDS

Landlords must provide working equipment for utilities including heat, electricity, plumbing, and both hot and cold running water. If any of your utilities don't work, ask your landlord to fix the problem.

Heat: Your landlord must provide equipment that can heat your home to at least 65°. If your furnace won't heat your home to 65°, your landlord must fix or replace the broken heater. If your landlord is responsible for heating, they must provide fuel or pay the heat bill.

Gas, Electricity, and Water: Your landlord must provide equipment for these services. You don't have to pay for the utilities used by other renters or used in areas shared with other renters.

What Should I Do If My Heat Or Utilities Aren't Working?

- Ask your landlord to fix the problem. If you ask in person, try to make sure there is a witness with you. If you ask in writing, keep copies of any letters, emails, or text messages that you send. Describe the problem and tell the landlord that you want the problem fixed right away.
- Call code enforcement. If the problems are still not fixed after you ask your landlord to fix them, call Bloomfield Building Department at (860) 769-3516 or the West Hartford-Bloomfield Health District at (860) 561-7900 or Bloomfield Social & Youth Services at (860) 242-1895.
- Call the Police. If the above-mentioned departments are closed and you are unable to wait until the next business day, call the Bloomfield Police Department at (860) 242-5501.
- Contact Housing Court. If your landlord does not fix the problem(s) within 21 days of reporting your complaint, you can start a lawsuit with housing court. Once you start your lawsuit, you will pay rent to the court, not to your landlord. You will keep paying your rent to the court until your case is over. For additional information, contact the Hartford Housing Court office at 860-756-7920 or visit www.jud.ct.gov/faq3/landlord.html
